Learning Responsibility

Being responsible begins with knowing that your actions have consequences. Use the chart below to list one way to be responsible in each situation. Then write the consequences if you choose not to be responsible.

Situation	Responsible Action	Consequences If Not Responsible
At Home	_____ _____	_____ _____
At School	_____ _____	_____ _____
With Friends	_____ _____	_____ _____

Family Note: Your child is learning that responsibility means understanding that actions have consequences. If your child completes this activity page at home, help him or her fill in the chart by suggesting possible responsible actions and the negative consequences of irresponsibility.

Catechist Note: Use this activity page with Chapter 4, "Loving Choices." Before assigning the chart as an individual exercise, review the connection between actions and consequences. After the young people have completed the exercise, use the section entitled "At School" to generate a group list of actions and consequences.
